

Integrated Criminal Records Information System (I-CRIS)

The Problem

To ensure the safety of officers and the public, justice agents need access to criminal records from many agencies. Different levels of state and local government need to share critical information without altering each agency's operational structure. Otherwise, crimes occur that could have been avoided, and officer safety can be jeopardized.

The ASG Solution

I-CRIS, or the Integrated Criminal Records Information System, is a robust digital solution that combines records from many types of justice agencies and hosts this information on one secure web site. Using I-CRIS, an investigator can easily search records across jurisdictions and regional areas.

I-CRIS fosters a cooperative network, succeeding through participation of individual agencies. While maintaining control of its own files, each agency contributes data that other agencies need. By helping to share records, I-CRIS benefits officer safety and improves the quality of services to the public.

I-CRIS is an even stronger solution when packaged with IVIS in JustIS, the Justice Information Suite. JustIS links I-CRIS to IVIS, a powerful system that provides immediate notification to crime victims. JustIS allows a seamless flow of data from agencies to crime victims. When agencies record any number of important actions, I-CRIS works with IVIS to send immediate notice to the people who need to know.
